Brooks had in his possession, at one time, the pistol with which Howard Banks shot and killed Thomas Elzie and the police are inclined to think that this pistol is one of the lot which was stolen from Carlin's store. Brooks sold the revolver to a colored man named Joseph Harris, who in turn sold it to Banks.

INTERESTING EXHIBIT OF HAT MANUFACTURE

Saks & Co. Display Various Processes as Used in Making the Stetson.

Saks & Co. make a novel and attractive change from the usual method of advertising this week. Not only do they show the Stetson hat which they are selling, but they have an entire window given up to the exposition of how the hats are made, the materials of which they are composed, and the changes they must undergo before forming the perfect Stetson hat.

While it would be impossible to demonstrate all the half a hundred stages in hatmaking, seven of the most interesting stages are shown in the cleverly arranged show window.

A similar display was used by Saks in New York a short time ago and that it was interesting is shown by the fact that, while the display was in the window, the sidewalk outside was constantly thronged with spectators.

One of the most interesting features of the show is the demonstration of the things which make up the Stetson hat. Scattered about in the window are the various kinds of fur used in the hat, beaver from Montana, and harekins from Saxony and Belgium.

Blocks and flanges, used for shaping the hat, are also shown. A sample of shellac, which is the product of an insect in India, and which is used to stiffen the hat, is shown, and the leathers out of which the sweatbands are made are displayed.

Because it is really educational, the Saks stores are big sellers of Stetson hats. The hats which are the favorites out West where wide-brimmed hats are all the rage for men and women.

EXPRESS AUTO HITS WAGON.

An express automobile became unmanageable while on Seventh street northwest yesterday afternoon, striking a wagon owned by Hester Hatchee, of Brookland, D. C., running up on the sidewalk and smashing into the plate-glass show window in the store at 722-24 Seventh street.
